OUR SERVICE

The handling of funds is the basic function of a bank, but that in itself does not measure up to the service factors that a bank of today should assume. This bank realizes the full depth of its obligation, and accordingly has surrounded itself with officers and department heads who are competent to extend sound, conservative advice on such of your business problems as you may desire to entrust.

HOOVER IS ELECTED PRESIDENT CARRIES TEXAS BY BIG MAJORITY

EZANGELIST HOGG TO LECTURE HERE

Evangelist Will Hogg will deliver his famous lecture, "The Scraps of Khaki," at the High School Auditorium in Cross Plains on Monday night, Nov. 19th, at 7:30 P. M.

Evangelist Hogg, following the big revivals which he has conducted in Cross Plains and a number of the surrounding towns, needs no introduction to the people in this part of the country and a record crowd is expected to gather here and hear this great lecture. All the proceeds from the lecture will be donated to the Methodist church in Cross Plains, to help pay the indebtedness on the new church. Tickets for the lecture are now on sale at the Higginbotham Bros. & Co. store.

MAYOR'S NOTICE

I wish to commend the fine boys of Cross Plains for their thorough compliance with my request for a sane and harmless Halloween night celebration. The festivities were fine in the manner in which they were conducted, and all had a good time. Not a single complaint of mischievous damage or misconduct was reported, and this was quite an exception to what has followed former Halloween nights. This manner of celebration can be a useful lesson when contrasted with what happened in one of our not very far distant towns. In that town one boy was killed when his car struck an old cultivator machine which had been placed on the main street, and now a number of boys are under arrest to answer for the crime. Official warnings are given equally for the protection of the boys who would celebrate and for all other citizens and property of a town.

MARTIN NEEP,
Mayor of Cross Plains.

BAND TAX DEFEATED THREE TO ONE VOTE

In the election held in Cross Plains on Friday of last week to vote on the proposition of the city levying and collecting a tax of three mills on the dollar for the purpose of supporting a municipal band was defeated by a vote of over three to one, the vote standing 139 against and 39 for the tax.

A well trained local band is a good asset from an entertaining standpoint, and a great publicity feature when needed for that purpose. All the people in Cross Plains realize and appreciate this fact. But the burden of taxes resulting from the recent and more substantial public improvements seem about all the taxpayers care to take on at the present time; and it may yet be necessary to make retrenchments along other lines in order to reduce the current tax rate. The outstanding bonded indebtedness of the city, and other guarantees of maintenance which the city has obligated, however great may appear the need of other public affairs, must be taken care of by specific taxation and the implied maintenance agreement.

In view of its former accomplishments, reflecting great credit and a notable publicity for the city, and the fact that it has been recently reorganized with one of the best instructors in the State at its head, it is believed that the business men of the city will provide a means for its support, as they they have done since its organization. There is a great future ahead for Cross Plains, and the Cross Plains Band can be made a chief factor in hastening its realization.

A problem in proportion: If two tractors are needed to haul an apple pie containing 100 bushels of apples, 450 pounds of flour and 250 pounds of shortening, how many boys each eating six slices, would be required in order to finish the pie?

A movement is now on foot to eliminate crime from politics. It may be done but never graft.

Tabulated figures made from almost complete official returns, indicate unmistakably that the Republicans in Tuesday's election have gained one of the greatest political landslides that has ever happened since the formation of this nation. These figures place Hoover's electoral vote at 444, with Smith only 87. Hoover's majority in Texas, from figures in hand Thursday morning, is 17,640, and may reach 20,000 when full returns are in. Virginia, North Carolina and Florida also went Republican on the national ticket. Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana are the only Southern States that have remained under the Democratic banner. In Callahan county Hoover received 913 votes to Smith's 859. The Cross Plains precinct gave Hoover 213 votes and Smith 99. In the face of this great Republican majority on the national ticket, Texas has remained overwhelmingly Democratic in the election of States and county officers.

THE SPIRIT OF ARMISTICE DAY

Next Sunday, Nov. 11, is Armistice Day, and commemorates the joyous ending of the World War. It will never be again remembered with the same joy and enthusiasm that it was on the initial day just ten years ago.

Had we of the present time lived at other epochal events in the world's history we would know now, by comparison, the deeper meaning of Armistice Day. Imagine, if you can, what rejoicing must have succeeded the close of wars of so much less magnitude than the World War. Other conflicts have meant the birth of new nations, the establishment of new systems of government and new alignments in international thought and policy. But the Armistice of 1918, we hope, brought to a close the interest and profit in wars of aggression, ended belief in the principle of armed superiority, and taught the nations lessons in efficiency and preparedness.

As an indication of the significance of Armistice Day we find its celebration an almost universal custom. But to interpret the word "Armistice" literally would be to define it as a temporary cessation of hostilities by mutual agreement. This is not enough. There must be in the ceremonial of this day a spirit of permanent peace. Without such understanding and application to the cause of a lasting truce Armistice becomes but a pause, a resting place and period between bloody contest.

On November 11 watch a parade if you have the opportunity. See the faces of the boys as they march. Note the clearness of eyes, the pride of step, the grimness of face—disciplined and determined NOW for peace as surely as they were set for victory in war. This is the spirit of Armistice Day, and may it always express positive decision for the pursuits of peace.

BAIRD BABY HAD APPENDICITIS

Baird has probably supplied the youngest child that was ever operated upon for appendicitis. Little Bettie Hickman, who is thought to be youngest person in Texas, if not in the United States, recently underwent an operation for that affliction in Forth Worth. Little Bettie, 17 months old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ace Hickman. Mr. Hickman is a banker at Baird. The surgeon who performed the operation said he had witnessed about 3000 and that Bettie was the youngest person he ever knew to undergo one of that character.

The loss of one booster in the community should be the encouragement to secure another equally as good.

Mr. Hoover came out for a full gasoline tank, but he didn't say anything about paid-up installments on the car.

Your Own Home

At Thanksgiving time, when home folks are going home, and families gather about the firesides, it makes each one who is not a home owner yearn for a home of his own. Owning your own home is but a matter of careful planning. It is our service to aid you in planning that you may own your own home.

M-SYSTEM GROCERY FOR CROSS PLAINS

A new grocery store, owned exclusively by Geo. Erwin and operated on the famous M-System of groceries, will have its formal opening in Cross Plains Saturday morning of this week. It is located in the John Barry brick building on the west side of Main street. It is an attractive and conveniently arranged system and is a new style in Cross Plains grocery line. It is stocked full of choice groceries and its market division is equipped with the modern Frigidaire cooling system. George is popularly and well known to everybody in this community and will doubtless do a thriving business.

The American Legion Auxiliary met with Mrs. Lew Fuston Nov. 1. Eleven members were present and a pleasant afternoon was enjoyed.

The ladies will meet with Mrs. Huckaby Thursday Nov. 8, for the purpose of tagging poppies, which will be sold on Saturday, by the ladies. Then again on Nov. 15 Mrs. Huckaby will be hostess to the ladies. This is a very important meeting as new officers will be elected.

BRADSTREET—HOLDEN GET NICE PRODUCER

The first good producer that has been added to the west field for some time is the Bradstreet & Holden Compere No. 1, brought in late Wednesday. This hole is standing approximately 1000 feet in oil, and is estimated at 100 barrels per day. Bradstreet & Holden have made their second offset to the west of this well, and it is understood that the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. will offset immediately.

Another good well was obtained the last week in the shallow field near Drossy, which is making about one-half million feet gas and fifteen barrels of oil daily. It was drilled in by the Grass Roots Oil Company and is located on the J. W. Klutt's farm, and is a direct offset to the Eubank No. 1.

Well, anyhow, people don't stand out on the front porch or hang around the mail box waiting for a mail-order catalogue in this community anymore. They just read the advertisements in the Cross Plains Review every week and find more satisfying prices. And can see the goods before they swap the money for them. Trade at home.

C. A. LOTIEF WRITES FROM HOLY LANDS

Mt. Lebanon, Oct. 2, 1928

Editor Review:

As I promised to write your paper about my trip to Syria and Mt. Lebanon, so here I am.

My trip has been extra good, having a wonderful time. I had a great reception; the people came to see me from a long distance and it lasted for twenty-five days. They all were glad to see me. The figs and grapes are the best they have had here for many years, so you can easily see that I had my share of it. The olive crops are also good.

I have visited all the old places, such as Adonis Cedars of Lebanon, Blaluk Port, Jabbel Ruins, where they found the gold and coffins that are made up of solid rocks, big as Nebel's filling Station, and its lids are one solid piece of rock of same design and with cut flower work on the rock. Some of my Texas friends would be glad to pay any amount to see it. We took some pictures of the oldest people in the place. Three of their ages combined, were 280 years old. One of them, my aunt, is 110, my father is 78, and one of our neighbors in the group is 92. My friends in Texas will be somewhat surprised to see these pictures upon my return home.

We visited the Abraham River; they called it Tels Abraham. It originates at the bottom of a high mountain and is as cold as ice water, and comes out of a large hole in the solid rock, larger than any show window in Cross Plains. They have a big cafe and saloon in front of the spring, and whiskey and wine is very cheap here. They all drink but have no drunkards in this country. We also visited the rug factory. All Syrian rugs are made by hand, and mostly by girls. They get about 25 cents per day for labor; some get as high as 50 cents. Some wages? There are many churches here, but very few schools.

I will try to spend Christmas with the folks at home, and will bring some good things with me to show the folks. Hoping the crops are good, and luck to all, and hoping to have a Democratic president.

Respectfully,
CECIL A. LOTIEF.

Editor's Note: Mr. Lotief is head of the Lotief Dry Goods Company in Cross Plains, and left here in the early summer for a visit to his country, the Holy Lands.

FIREFLY SHOWN AT HOWELL THEATRE, COLEMAN, NOV. 21

Ancient the coming of the season's musical event, "The Firefly," there is much local interest manifest in the author and composer, who has given us such world renown successes as "Rose Marie," "Firefly," "The Vagabond King," "The Three Musketeers," and others equally prominent.

Friml's rise to eminence as one of the modern composers had its beginning in a humble home in Prague, Bohemia, in 1895, where the boy of 18 years, whose father worked in a bakery, flashed out his first original compositions on an accordion—music so inspiring that it tempted his father to buy a cheap melodeon with scanty funds which he and his wife had saved for their winter's supply of wood. When the father trundled the melodeon home on wheelbarrow, Friml's mother threatened to smash it and burn it in place of the fuel so badly needed. She had no patience with the lad's musical ambitions, but his father stood by him, and the owner of the bakery, after hearing the boy play, advanced the money to give him a course in the Prague conservatory.

CITY DRUG STORE

A TALE OF THE WEST OF TWENTY YEARS AGO DRUMS OF THE SUNSET

By Robert E. Howard

The Wanderer.

The old man shrugged his shoulders and shook his head. "Son, I've wondered myself. He and his pard lives up in them mountains and regular once a week one of 'em rides to Rifle Pass or maybe clean to Stirrup, east. They have nothin' to do with me or anybody else. I've wondered, but, gosh, they aint a chance!"

"Aint a chance of what?"

"That," said Hard Luck, his lean hand indicating the black vastness of the hills. Somewhere up there amongst them canyons and gorges and cliffs, is a fortune! And sometimes I wonder if Gila Murken aint found it.

"It's forty year ago that me and Bill Hansen come through this country—first white men in it, so far as I know. I was nothin' but a kid then an' we was buffalo hunters, kinda strayed from the regular course.

"We went up into them hills, Sunset Mountains, the Indians call 'em, and away back somewhere we come into a range of cliffs. Now, it dont look like it'd be that way, lookin' from here, but in among the mountains they's long chains of cliffs, straight up and down, maybe four hundred feet high clay and rock—mighty treacherous stuff. They's maybe seventeen sets of these cliffs, Ramparts, we call 'em, and they look just alike. Trees along the edge, thick timber at the base. The edges is always crumblin' an' startin' land slides and avalanches.

"Me and Bill Hansen come to the front of one of these Ramparts and Bill was lookin' at where the earth of the cliff face had kinda shelved away when he let out a whoop!

"Gold! Reef gold—the blamestest vein I ever see, just lying there right at the surface ready for somebody to work out the ore and cart it off! We dropped our guns and laid into the cliff with our finger nails, diggin' the dirt away. And the vein looked like she went clear to China! Get that, son, reef gold and quartz in the open face cliff.

"Bill," says I, "We're milyunaires!" "And just as I said it, somethin' came whistlin' by my cheek and Bill give one yell and went down on his face with a steel pointed arrow through him. And before I could move a rifle cracked and somethin' that felt like a red hot hammer hit me in the chest and knocked me flat.

"A war party—they'd stole up on us while we was diggin'. Cheyennes they was, from the north and they come out and chanted their scalp songs over us. Bill was dead and I lay still, all bloody but conscious, partendin' I was a stiff too.

"They scalped Bill and they scalped me—"

Steve gave an exclamation of horror. "Oh, yes," said Hard Luck tranquilly, "It hurt considerable—fact is, I dont know many things that hurt wuss. But somehow I managed to lie still and not let on like I was alive, though a couple of times I thought I was goin' to let out a whoop in spite of myself."

"Did they scalp you plumb down to the temples?" asked Steve morbidly. "Naw—the Cheyennes never scalped that way," Hard Luck ran his hand contemplatively over his glistening skull. "They just cut a piece out of the top purty good sized piece though—and the rest of the hair kinda got discouraged and faded away, after a few years.

"Anyway, they danced and yelled fer awhile an' then they left an' I began to take invoice to see if I was still livin'. I was shot through the chest but by some miracle the ball had gone on through without hittin' anything important. I thought though, I was goin' to bleed to death. But I stuffed the wound with leaves and the webs these large white spiders spin on the low branches of trees. I crawled to a spring which wasnt far away an' lay there like a dead man till night, when I came to and lay there thinkin' about my dead friend, and my wounds and the gold I'd never enjoy.

"Then, I got out of my right mind and went crawlin' away through the forest, not knowin' why I did it. I was just like a man that's drunk; I knowed what I was doin' but I didnt know why I was doin' it. I crawled and I crawled and how long I kept on crawlin' I dont know fer I passed clean out, finally, and some buffalo hunters found me out in the level country, miles and miles from where I was wounded. I was ravin' and gibberin' and nearly dead.

"They tended to me, and after a long time my wounds healed and I come back to my right mind. And when I did, I thought about the gold and got up a prospectin' party and went back. But seems like I couldnt remember what all happened just before I got laid out. Everything was vague and I couldnt remember what way Bill and me had taken to get to the cliff, and I couldnt remember how it looked. They've been a lot of land slides, too, and likely everything was changed in looks.

"Anyway, I couldnt find the lost mine of Sunset Mountains, and though I been comin' every so often and explorin' again, for forty years me nor no other livin' man has ever laid eyes on that gold ledge. Some land slide done covered it up, I reckon. Or maybe I just aint never found the right cliff. I dont know.

"I done give it up. I'm gittin' old. Now I'm runnin' a few sheep and am purty contented. But you know now why they call me Hard Luck."

"And you think that maybe this Murken has found your mine and is workin' it on the sly?"

"Naw, really I dont. I wouldnt be like Gila Murken to try to conceal the fact—he'd just come out and claim it and dare me to take it away from him. Anyway, 'the old man continued with a touch of vanity,' No dub like Gila Murken could find somethin' that a old prospector like me has looked fer, fer forty year without findin', nohow."

Silence fell. Steve was aware that the night wind, whispering down from the mountains, carried a strange dim throbbing—a measured even cadence, haunting and illusive.

"Drums," said Hard Luck, as if divining his thought, "Indians drums; tribes away back up in the mountains. Nothin' like them that took my scalp. Navajoes, these is, a low class gang that wandered up from the south. The government give 'em a kind of reservation back in the Sunset Mountains. Friendly, I reckon—trade with the whites a little.

"Them drums is been goin' a heap the last few weeks. Still nights you can hear 'em easy; sound travels a long way in this land."

His voice trailed off into silence. Steve gazed westward where the monstrous shadowy peaks rose black against the stars. The night breeze whispered a lonely melody through the cedars and pines. The scent of fresh grass and forest trees was in his nostrils. White stars twinkled above the dark mountains and the memory of a pretty, wistful face floated across Steve's vision. As he grew drowsy the face seemed nearer and clearer, and always through the mists of his dreams throbbed faintly the Sunset drums.

CHAPTER 2.

Mystery.

Steve drained his coffee cup and set it down on the rough hewn table.

"I reckon," said he, "For a young fellow you're a pretty good cook—Hard Luck, I been thinkin'."

"Dont strain yoreself, son. It aint a good idee startin' in on new things, at this time of yore life—what you been thinkin' about?"

"That mine of yours. I believe, instead of goin' on to Rifle Pass like I was thinkin' of doin', I'll lay over a few days and look for that lost gold ledge."

"Considerin' as I spent the best part of my life huntin' it," said Hard Luck testily, "Its very likely you'll stub yore toe on it the first thing. The Lord Knows, I'd like to have you stay here as long as you want to. I dont see many people. But they aint no chance in a hundreq of you findin' that mine, and I'm tellin' you, it aint healthy to ramble around in the Sunsets now, with Gila Murken hatchin' out the Devil only knows what, up there."

A Royal Welcome Awaits You!

Cisco To Have Armistice Day Program

Preparations are under way for Cisco's Armistice Day Celebration on Monday, November 12th. It now looks as though this year's event will surpass any previous effort.

The day begins with a mile long parade at ten thirty. The American Legion Post of Cisco together with legionnaires from all over the Oil Belt will head the parade. Company 1 of the 142nd Infantry of Ranger will be in the line of march fully accoutered. Floats from Ranger, Eastland, Baird, Rising Star, Moran, Breckenridge, and Mineral Wells have been promised. Decorated cars and floats will represent the business interests, the civic organizations and the schools and college of Cisco. Bands and pep squads will add color to the occasion.

At three o'clock on Chesley Field, the Big Dam Loboes and the Ranger Bull Dogs tie up in the Foot-ball classic of the oil Belt. This will bring together two well matched teams, each fighting for the district championship. At Ninth Street and Avenue D the Eastland County Jersey Show will be in progress. This will bring together the best Jersey breeders in this part of Texas. This show is serving a real purpose in the wide-spread development of dairying now underway all over this territory. Entries to date assure the presence of the best blood lines of American Jerseys.

No pains are being spared to make this holiday an outstanding event. The great news reels will have cameramen present while the metropolitan papers of Texas will cover the day's events.

I will pay 45 cents per dozen for eggs Saturday. Clark's Grocery.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

TELLING THE BEES

OF LATE years the superstitious custom of "telling the bees" when there is a death in the family has nearly died out, but it still lingers in remote country districts and to within comparatively a few years ago was almost universal in rural communities. The mention of the custom will recall at once Whittier's beautiful poem on the subject. The belief was that if the bees were not told of the death they would either die or emigrate; some communities believed the one and some the other.

The superstition is supposed to have originated in the remote past when the farmer, less well informed with regard to bees than he is now but observant of their industry, their skill in building their combs, their organized society of drones, workers and queens, regarded them with a sort of awe as possessing human intelligence. Moreover they worked for him day in and day out without pay. If they were lower in the scale than his hired man they were higher than his cattle. It was due to them to inform them when a death took place in the family; they had intelligence enough to comprehend and if not told might feel offended and fly away or turn sullen and die when they discovered that they had been neglected in so important a matter.

Telling the bees was a pretty idea and it is almost a pity that it is dying out while so many repulsive superstitions show no signs of losing their vitality.

HALLOWEEN PARTY

Last Wednesday on Hallowe'en a party was given by the Epworth Leaguers of Cross Plains, in the Methodist Church.

The basement was decorated in hallowe'en decoration and every thing was very weird like, such as a long spook room, horror chambers, and a fortune telling booth.

After every one had been greeted at the front door, they were ushered by Ava Walker through the spook room over bed springs, planks, pieces of paper blowing in every direction by an electric fan, and where ghosts were stationed about. They next entered the fortune telling booth, where every ones future was related. Then they were ushered into the horror chamber where ghosts were standing; a rattling of chains, cow-bells, and a sparkling of two huge eyes. A story of a dead man was told and parts of his body were handle by many who listened to the sad, sad story.

Next they were ushered into the reception room, where numerous games were played. Every one then voted on the prettiest girl present for the Queen Hallowe'en; when the votes were counted it was found that Miss Mary Eeli Tittsworth won by a large majority and the two next to the highest were the Queens Attendants, who were Miss Doris Atwood and Mr. Imagine Williams (dressed as a woman). After the Queen was crowned, she sang, "Get out and get under the moon," then the guest in turn gave her their greeting, by making a very polite bow and kneeling on the carpet which was connected with a battery, of course many received a shock.

A few musical numbers were rendered by Miss Ruby Lee Jones, Marie Kennedy, Mary Bell Tittsworth, and also a reading by Mrs. M. B. Tittsworth. Refreshments of pumpkin pie and coffee were served to the guests as follows:

Mary Bell Tittsworth, Doris Atwood, Mr. Imagine Williams, Mrs. L. O. Crook, Mrs. S. X. Swimme, Mrs. Clyde Walker, Mrs. M. B. Tittsworth, Mrs. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Heckabee.

Misses Ruby Lee and Opal Mae Jones, Athalie Adams, Etyle Taylor, Margaret Robins, Maxine Tittsworth, Lela Mae Bennett, Myrtle Eugenia Haggard, Kathlene Ford, Ava Walker, Evelyn Barr, Marie Bryant, Wilda McLain, Stella Bell, Maola Garrett, Louise Cunningham, Charlise and Mildred Stellings, Georgia and Mable Jones, Vera Ford, Maurine Harris, Virginia Payne, Marie Neeb, Juakana Westerman, and Zora Mae Webb.

Messrs. Phil Bingham, Van Campbell, Austin Newton, Chase Adams, W. A. Williams, Hulon Barr, A. C. Dodson, Orba Booth, Rex Clark, and Edward Schaffner.

Every one left about 10:30 reporting a delightful evening complimenting Miss Rena Bruce on her skill as hostess.

DO YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

That where people buy and what they buy depend upon the advertisements they read.

That a business concern that wishes to attract business must make itself attractive to those who have money to spend. No business exists in the minds of the public unless it is constantly telling them what they have for sale.

That quality, well advertised is always in popular demand. This fact is proven because quality is selling in greater volume every year.

That persistent advertising maintains present business and assures future business.

That well advertised merchandise is better for use; therefore, better to sell or buy.

That business concerns are judged to a great extent by the merchandise they offer for sale.

That it is always best to carry well advertised lines in stock and advertise that fact locally.

That successful business concerns are the greatest asset any community can have.

Advertising through the printed page is the best, cheapest and surest way for business concerns to tell why they are, where they are and who they are, where they are and what they have for sale.

The History Club had a very interesting meeting last week. Edwin Baum gave a talk on the Revolution. Zora V. McDermitt gave a sketch of John Paul Jones. Marie Neeb told of the treason of Benedict Arnold. Hulon Barr gave a study of the military campaign of Washington. H. H. McDermitt took the club back to the discovery of America, telling of Columbus.

Thursday afternoon at a meeting of the Juniors, an earnest appeal for class dues was made. Those who have class pride will not fail to pay the due.

The Junior Class has three new members: Roger Watson and Morris Donaldson from Burkett and Thelma Smith from Dressy.

The Pep Squad and the foot ball boys enjoyed a "weinie" roast recently. The casualties of the evening were the nose of Phil Bingham and the shirt of Mr. A. H. Daniels.

Mr. Kennedy told his English IV, to learn the meaning of wit. Lana and Doris asked Mr. Haggard the Meaning of wit.

Mr. Haggard: You, (Lana) equal one half wit, and you (Doris) equal one half wit. Therefore, Lana plus Doris equal wit.

Mr. K. George, what is a symphony? George R. -It's a lot of simps together who play phony music.

One of the family friends met Jimmie Baum, with a package under his arm, walking slowly.

Friend: Jimmie, you should hurry. Don't you know you will miss your supper.

Jimmie: Oh, no sor! I have the meat with me.

BROWNIE AND THE LOON

ILLIE BROWNIE had always wanted to talk to the bird known as the Loon or Great Northern Diver.

He had heard the expression "as crazy as a loon" and he knew it was always used when people did silly, crazy things.

He wondered if there was any truth in the expression or how it had started in the first place.

So he decided he would call upon a loon.

On his way there he wondered just how he would talk to the loon.

It was rather a difficult thing to go to a creature and say:

"Look here, old chap, they say a person is as crazy as a loon when that person has been behaving foolishly. Is it true? Are you about as crazy and foolish as a creature can be?"

Yes, it would be extremely difficult to say that, and yet that was just exactly what Billie Brownie wanted to find out.

He Did Know What to Say.

He puzzled and he puzzled as to the way he would begin the conversation. Perhaps he would start in by saying something about foolishness and then say, as though it had just occurred to him:

"By the way, they tell me you're a bit foolish yourself."

He was afraid, though, that he would not be able to say this in such a way as to make it sound as though he had just thought of it.

Then he wondered if he could talk about crazy things people had done and add:

"I don't suppose you've ever done anything silly, have you?"

But he was afraid that might not do. That might sound as though he had meant the conversation to lead up

Just Another Container

In "Up the Years From Bloomsbury," the actor, George Arliss, tells of meeting in Boston a delighted old lady, Mrs. Bell, who was then eighty-four.

"I met her at many gatherings. No dinner party in which she was included was ever dull. She generally kept everyone in peals of laughter, and I never heard her repeat herself. She lived in a small house with a small back garden. For a time she kept a pig in the yard and when asked why on earth she kept it, she said: "Well, we must have something to put things in."

Going Too Far

A city magnate the other day summoned his manager.

"Look here, Robinson," said he.

to that very subject—as was really the truth!

He didn't know what to do. And even after he saw the loon he did not know what to say. He decided to himself he would wait awhile and see whether the loon seemed sensitive or "touchy" or whether he appeared as though he would not mind what was talked of between them.

The loon did seem very nervous. He was, Billie Brownie soon saw, a most marvelous diver and he did his marketing with great ease and masterfulness.

"You'll forgive me if I'm a bit restless," the loon said. "It's my disposition."

Billie Brownie was delighted. Here was the loon introducing the subject himself!

Billie needn't have spent so much time worrying and puzzling over what he might say.

"Are you so restless, then?" Billie Brownie returned. "I suppose your family all have the same kind of a disposition?"

Billie had long ago discovered that once a creature was started in talking about himself, there was no effort about making him continue.

"Yes, we have much the same disposition divided up among the members of the family," the loon said.

Billie smiled to himself. The loon spoke as though dispositions were divided up as homes and gardens might be divided.

"You see we have always been restless. But we're not crazy when we're free.

"We're pretty foolish at times, now and again. But it is when we're put in close quarters that we go crazy."

"Yes, we go plain crazy—or fancy crazy if you'd prefer to speak of it in that way.

"They do not keep us in the zoos because we go crazy, lose our appetites and all our energy.

"We wouldn't mind, perhaps, if we had quantities of room, but quantities of room means to be free.

"It is when we have been in zoos and when we have gone crazy that people have seen us and have said:

"See those crazy loons. How very, very crazy they are."

"So we have the reputation of being crazy. 'Crazy as a loon' has become quite an expression.

"But I must go for a dive and swim now, Billie Brownie. Glad you called as the signs of either end of the town say to the automobile people who've come a-visitin'."

And Billie Brownie went home with his question answered without having had to ask the question.

"You'll have to talk to that new rellow, Jones, you took on as shorthand typist."

"Why, what's the matter with him?" said Robinson. "I know he stutters rather badly, but you said—"

"I said I didn't mind that, but look at this." The magnate held out a letter which read: "In reference to yours of the eighth ult."

Then he continued: "Stuttering on the typewriter I simply won't stand."

Starvation Diet

Eating one food to the exclusion of others will lead to death by starvation as quickly as will fasting. White flour foods belong in this category, according to doctors, as they supply no building material for the body.

NEW COTTON DISEASE FOUND BY SCIENTIST

A new disease of cotton has been discovered by Dr. J. J. Taubennaus, chief of the division plant pathology, Experiment Station, A. & M. College of Texas, in connection with his studies of the cotton root rot disease. This new malady has been found in three different sections of Texas, including the blackland section, and its effects upon cotton are, in many respects, similar to those due to cotton wilt, common in Eastern states.

Just how serious that new disease may now be, or may become, is not known at present, but it is not believed to be of so much importance as cotton root rot, nor is it believed that farmers need feel serious apprehension at this time. In the study of cotton root rot from every angle that offers hope for a practical solution of the problem, research workers of the Experiment Station are also noting carefully the presence and activity of any other disease of cotton which may be effecting the crop under Texas conditions.

UNEMPLOYED TEACHERS AND COLLEGE STUDENTS, WHY DON'T YOU ENTER BUSINESS

There is a wonderful opportunity in business for the unemployed teacher or the college student who by force of circumstances had to drop out of college. Because of your unusual literary qualifications, business concerns prefer you. You make better office employees. No matter what your circumstances are, should have a business training; no matter what your circumstances are, you CAN have business training.

We have a novel yet simple plan that is helping hundreds of young people through our school—a plan that enables them to pay the greater portion of their expenses after they are placed on a business man's pay-roll.

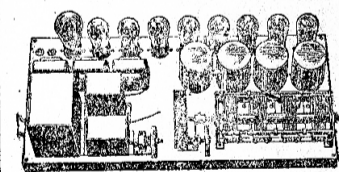

No need to wait till after Christmas to begin because any one who desires may visit home at least ten days during the Christmas holidays. So, if you enter now, you will be just two months ahead of the fellow who waits until after Christmas to start.

You will be surprised at what we can do for just a few dollars and a few months of your time.

THE C. P. H. S. BUFFALOES WILL PLAY AT COLEMAN FRIDAY

Today Friday, Nov. 9, the hard hitting Cross Plains High School Buffaloes will invade the Blue Cats on their home field at Coleman. It is anticipated that after the stampede of the Buffs over the Blue Cats, there will be nothing left of the Coleman team but dead cats.

In 1926 the Blue Cats defeated a pitifully weak Buffalo team, on a field that closely resembled a hog pen, instead of a cats den. By a score of 12-0. Last year a very strong Buffalo team forced the Blue Cats to tuck their tails between their rear legs and seek cover to the tune of 26 to 6, most of the Buffs' scores coming from a fourth quarter rally.

THE STARTING LINE UP:

ALL TRAINING ROADS LEAD TO RISING STAR.

Coach Huggins will have his men shaped to a fine fettle on the date of the post season game. It will be one of the most bitter and hard fought battles seen by fans of this section for years. The reason of bitterness, is this, four or five years ago, Cross Plains High School organized the Buffaloes, Rising Star with a team organized quite a few years before, made the fatal statement to them that Cross Plains would never produce a team that could defeat Rising Star, this year Cross Plains High School, fortunat in securing Coach Huggins and in having good gridiron material, has produced a team that can, and will beat Rising Star. The game will be very far from a snap, but the fighting spirit of the Buffs will carry them triumphly to victory over their rivals.

Coach Huggins expects to have R. Clark, Bennett and Murry, who have been on the injured list, back in the game today. Tommie Webb, the fourth member on the list will not be able to don a suit for at least a week.

CONSTANT EXPANSION

—to serve Chevrolet owners better

SINCE January 1st more than a million new Chevrolets have been delivered to owners—making the Chevrolet Motor Company, for the second consecutive year, the world's largest builder of automobiles!

This outstanding achievement has been attained not only because of the quality and value of Chevrolet cars—but also because there has been a constant expansion of Chevrolet service facilities.

In order to bring these mammoth facilities of the Chevrolet factories to Chevrolet dealers and owners everywhere, there have been erected 26 huge parts warehouses in the principal centers of distribution. This expansion program is continually going on—for four great additional warehouses will be in operation by January first and seven more by the summer of 1929.

Into the service departments of all Chevrolet dealers, Chevrolet has brought special tools and shop equipment—designed under the supervision of Chevrolet engineers. This equipment definitely assures maximum speed and precision and the lowest possible cost in the performance of every Chevrolet service and repair operation—which are charged for on a flat rate basis.

Furthermore, all of these tremendous facilities have been made available to 15,000 authorized service stations manned by skilled mechanics, over 25,000 of whom have been factory trained to efficiently handle every repair operation on a Chevrolet car. In addition, there are over 4,000 other points where genuine Chevrolet parts may be obtained.

Uniformly efficient, uniformly reliable and within easy reach of everybody everywhere—this great service organization is maintaining at peak efficiency the fine performance for which Chevrolet cars have always been renowned.

We cordially invite you to come in and see how our service facilities reflect the influence of this great national service program.

HALLOWEEN PARTY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Marsh was made attractive Wednesday evening with gay decorations, and a number of friends enjoyed a Halloween party given there. Orange and black streamers, jack-o lanterns, old witches, and black cats were effectively placed. Noise makers in the colors added to the merriment, and all the guests were in costume.

Games were enjoyed throughout the evening. Each person was taken through Blue Beard's Tomb, and fortune telling was another way of creating excitement. Prizes were given in a sewing contest, and to the one who pinned the broom in the hands of a witch. Dr. J. H. McGowen was clever enough to take away both these prizes.

Refreshments carrying out the Halloween colors were served to the following: Messrs. and Mmes. Glen Adams, Oren Wilson, Drew Baum, Thad Kelley, Bul McLaren, Misses Vivian Jannings, Gladys Irwin, Lora Redding, Dorothy Davis, Emma McCaren, Annie May McConothly, Dallan Kellar, Mabel Faust, Messrs. A MORTORIST'S PHILOSOPHY

(For The Review)

When you're drivin' on th' highway and you're feelin' pretty ruff, Just a little bold and cocky over knowin' all yer stuff; And you say "Why, I've been drivin' since th' model T. was born, And if I get into trouble I can always toot th' horn."

Then as suddenly as lightnin' looms a danger 'fore yer eyes, And, dependin' on yer record (as yer cockiness implies) So you drive on and try to make it, violatin' speed and pace, Bang and crash! You're forced to take it, any time er any place.

No, I ain't a preachin' to ye, I'm jest talkin' common sense, All misfortunes have their uses, all mistakes their recompense; Take a cloud afore th' raindrops, darkness comes afore th' dawn, After calm and storm and quiet, then th' sun keeps shinin' on.

So there ain't no use a sighin' tho this git o' sense seems tuff: It takes a little accident to make you know yer stuff!

REVIEW GRANTED IN EASTLAND ROAD CASE.

AUSTIN—The supreme court of Texas will review the case of Eastland county against G. A. Davison, road contractor and others. Another application for a writ of error was granted Wednesday to the plaintiffs in the district court, whose judgement was reversed and remanded by the court of civil appeals.

Eastland county sued and recovered judgement in the district court against Davison and C. R. Starnes, county judge, jointly and severally, for $388,575, and Joe Burkett, former state senator and former member of the Texas highway commission, and Sam D. Young jointly and severally, for $5,000 and in Eastland county against all parties for costs.

The court of civil appeals reversed and remanded the district court judgement and it is this action which prompted the application for writ of error. The suit contested certain expenditures by Eastland county alleged not to have been into account in final settlement between the county and contractor had claimed there had been certain breaches of an original supplemental contract between the county and original contractors for construction of a system of highways in Eastland county and purchase by the contractor at par and accrued interest of the county's $4,320,000 road bond.

The contract of purchase was breached to the extent of the items sued for and $38,388 allowed by the commissioners' court as a credit for "matters of bona sales, legal etc." it was alleged.

MORE GOOD WELLS EAST OF RISING STAR

L. B. Fain, drilling on the McKeenan tract, in the Old Goss well section, struck what is believed to be a nice well Monday, the well coming in on a natural flow, but was shut down for orders. The pay was struck at 2745 and has all the earmarks of a nice producer according to those who have seen it.

The Mon-Tex Co., was on the pay at 2750 Tuesday in their well on the Gardenhire tract, about a half mile east of the Mon-Tex Gasoline plant and developments are being watched with interest.

George Christy brought in good well on the extreme northwest corner of the Hickman 80 acre tract, Monday the flow being 10 barrels per hour natural. It is believed that a shot will make it the best well in the field. Rising Star Record.

In rapid succession Frim produced "Katinka" (1915), "You're In Love," "The Blue Kitten," "Tumble Inn" and the brilliant operetta, "Firefly." His latest triumphs are "The Vagabond King" and "Rose Marie."

YANG BUILDER TALKING TO HIS MULE

Over the hill trailed a man behind a mule drawing a Dixie plow. The clothopper was "broadcasting."

"Bill you are a mule, the son of a jackass, and I'm a man made in the image of God. Yet, here we work hitched together year in and year out. I often wonder if you work for me or a partnership between a mule and a fool. For surely I work harder than you do. Plowing here we cover the same distance, but you do it on four legs and I on two. So, mathematically speaking, I do twice as much work per leg as you do."

"Soon we'll be preparing for a corn crop, when the crop is harvested I give one-third to the landlord for being kind enough to let me use this corner of God's universe. The other third goes to you and what is left is my share. But while you consume all your third with the exception of a few cobs, I divide my third among seven children, six hens, two ducks and a banker. Bill you are getting the best of me; it ain't fair for a mule, the son of a jackass, to rob a man, the lord of creation, of his substance. And come to think if it, you only help to cultivate the ground. After that I cut, shock and husk it, while you look at me over the pasture fence and 'hehaw' at me."

"All fall and part of the winter the family, from granny on down to the baby, pick cotton to help raise money to buy you a new set of harness, and pay interest on the mortgage on you, and by the way what do you care about the mortgage? It doesn't worry you any. Not a darn bit. You leave that to me, you ungrateful onery cuss."

"About the only time when I'm your better is on election day, for I can vote and you can't. But if I ever get any more out of politics than you do I can't see where it is."

If it had been built in America it would have been called the Graft Zepplin.

Ring Wear

Honing is often satisfactory for .0025, .003 and .005 Standard Oversizes. For larger Standard Oversizes, honing alone is seldom economical and efficient. When the ring wear is greater than .005 we recommend STORMIZING, as honing alone cannot be depended upon to keep walls perpendicular to crankshaft.

The walls of the cylinders are amply heavy to stand two borings. .075 to .125 can be removed with safety, as the average thickness of a cylinder wall is approximately .250 or 1/4 of an inch to .312 or 5-16 of an inch, and removing metal enough to barely clean up the worn area of the cylinder will not weaken the wall to any extent. Two borings can be accomplished in most cases by removing .020 to .030 of metal.
